

EXPERIENCES OF TEACHERS FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF SPLIT INVOLVED IN THE SEA-EU VIRTUAL MOBILITY ACTIVITIES

„We enjoyed planning and conducting this type of course. During the isolation, students and I had the opportunity to listen to and discuss with the colleague from the other side of the EU and it was really refreshing. “

Assistant Professor Slađana Pavlinović Mršić, PhD, Faculty of Economics, Business and Tourism

(professor Pavlinović Mršić hosted virtual mobility course entitled „Sustainable tourism“ conducted by professor Ziolkowska from the University of Gdansk)

“There were no problems in communication and everything was successfully accomplished. My experience is positive and I think that by organising more frequent exchanges, we would establish closer cooperation.”

Winton Afrić, PhD, University Department of Professional Studies

(professor Afrić organised a virtual mobility course entitled „Mobile communication systems“ for the students of the University of Malta)

“Along with the cooperation on the scientific research that we have already agreed on and initiated during this virtual mobility, we came up with the idea of creating a complete mutual online study programme that would be offered to students of both institutions, but also to students of other partner institutions (these were just classes fitted into existing study programmes).“

Professor Srećko Goić, PhD, Faculty of Economics, Business and Tourism

(professor Goić conducted two virtual mobility courses, entitled „Diversity Management“ and „Business Communication“ for more than 70 students of the University of Gdansk)

„I would like to point out that the SEA-EU project enabled me to accomplish professional cooperation, but also make friends with colleagues from Gdansk and thus open „the door“ to the permanent international mobility that will definitely contribute to increasing quality of the conditions of study at the University of Split.“

Senka Borovac Zekan, PhD, University Department of Professional Studies

(professor Borovac Zekan organized virtual mobility course entitled „Negotiation skills“ for 100 students of the University of Malta)
