CALL OF PAPERS “PEACE & SECURITY – PEACE ET SÉCURITÉ INTERNATIONALES, EuroMediterranean Journal of International Law and International Relations”

TO members of SEA-EU Universities:

The ‘European University of the Seas’ (SEA-EU) Alliance was officially launched in October 2019, as part of the flagship 'European University' Initiative of the European Commission, to renew the vision of universities’ role as key leaders in and shapers of the future of Europe. The SEA-EU alliance brings together six partner universities: the University of Western Brittany (France) the University of Gdansk (Poland), the University of Malta, the University of Kiel (Germany) and the University of Split (Croatia).

In the context of the SEA-EU, was created the Observatory for Migrations and Human Rights in external maritime and ports borders, as a multidisciplinary team of experts on migration.

The contribution can address a starting or ongoing research of the members, in line with the thematics defined by the Observatory and the next topics of interest:

I.- International EU policy impacting migration:

- Concept of migrant:
- Externalization of migration management
- Maritime borders
- New pact on migration and asylum
- COVID-19 crisis

II.- Migrants and human rights - Changes in the protection of migrants' rights in 21st century:

- Rescue operations including rescue practices of different actors at the maritime borders of the European Union.
- Migrant access to asylum and the protection of the principle of non-refoulement.
- The role and responsibilities of various actors in rescue operations including the State, civil society, and European agencies in ensuring the protection of human rights at sea.
